

Linda Levy's final letter to her husband Lorne

March 10, 2018

so here we r at the end of a beautiful relationship, started somewhat rocky, but turned out darned well, wouldnt u say lor. anyway i want u to understand what it means to me to share our entire being as one unity & thats the financial end as well. all weve had together is ours & eventually yr sons & so on etc etc.

u & have a special bond, more so than many others & its paid good dividends by maintaining our ways & means.

i lv u a lot & will wait for however long it takes for u to join me & then we can buy our thatched cuddly cabin near clear water & build a life of splendor together again.

leaving u is like cutting out my heart & peace will only be achieved when i look upon yr face for the last time & know that Hashem will lead us to the promised cabin & our lovely garden, where we will grow our food stuff & reunite our life together, with one exception & that is never ever part again.

i sincerely hope that mike gives life a big chance to explore his existence with his wife & family & look after his dad as he should do.

lorne i love u with all there is to love & without yr help i cldnt have made it this far, u helped with ma & pa & mike & of course me.

u have taught me humility & made me realize that love is what is all about.

goodbye my love for now, tomorrow after all is another day.

yours for eternity - me
